"A NAIL IN OUR COFFIN." An exchange puts the case in the owing compact form :

During the recent campaign in New Hampshire, Senator Patterson took open and decided grounds against the Grant-Baez scheme for annexing San Dominga to the United States. He said General Sherman informed him that to protect Dominica it would require a standing army of five thousand men, which would be maintained at an annual expense of ten million dollars, and this would be a small part of the expense. The purchase money would mount to forty million dollars; and, in addition to this, would be the heavy expense of building for tifications and guard-the seaboard. The inhabitants are ignorant and, while we would educate the world, and, while we would educate the world, our first duty is at home. The people are rebellious, too, for it is only a few years since Spain spain sent forty thousand men there to suppress a rebellion, thirty thousand men there to suppress a rebellion, thirty thousand of whom found their graves, and Spain lost the country. THIERES AND THEIR LAWYERS. Last fall a party of robbers took a train on the Central Pacific Bailroad, and robbed the express car; but were followed so clesely that they were obliged to conceal a part of their booty in the mountainous regions west of Salt Lake City. The robbers were apprehended and brought to trial at Elko, where they secured the services of two lawyers to delend them. The sgents of Wells, Fargo & Co. suspected that the accused might turn over some of the stolen property to the lawyers in payment for their professional services, and determined to keep a watch on the latter.
